Dear Sirs:

This to plead again for labeling of GM foods.

Proliferation of GM constitutes irreversible pollution of the natural enviroment at its innermost sources. The reports so far of interaction with natural populations is indication enough of more to follow. Living, reproducing systems must be hugely complex compared to pharmaceuticals and the latter keep providing surprises. Consequently the sweeping assertions and assurances made about GM are evidence more of ignorance and/or indifference than of knowledge.

Its obviously too late to stop the stampede but cant the stuff at least be labeled ( & traceable). Do I want all corn to contain pesticide that cannot be washed off?
